Description

A beautiful Georgian corner cabinet with original thickly hewn oak backboards and original shaped shelves to the interior. Of small and elegant proportion and in excellent condition. . It is unusual to find 18th century pieces in solid yew wood and here the yew is richly burred and has developed a truly superb colour. . The cupboard is free standing and very heavy and sturdy. The doors open and close smoothly and the shelves are level and firm. . The cornice frieze and plinth are later additions as the cupboard was originally built in to a corner of a Georgian house. The later additions were added in 19th century to allow it to be freestanding but have been on the cupboard for more than a century and are extremely well blended as you can see from our photographs. . The turn thumb handles are copper and brass and the fielded panel doors have a lovely chamfered border. Upper arch to the interior original also. . A very beautiful and rare example in yew with an exemplary colour and naturally deep patina and dating from c. 1770. . . Dimensions are: . 78 inches high, 29 inches wide and approximately 25 inches deep when measured from front to back. . Along the angled side is 17...
