Description

This beautiful coromandel and brass bound lady's fitted toilet box is offered for a person who would be interested in restoration. The interior is fitted with an array of silver topped bottles but 2 of the glass parts are missing and one is broken at the neck. All the silver parts are present. There are lots of sewing and manicure tools all with mother of pearl handles. All the silver is engine turned and the maker is John Harris and the hallmarks are for London 1866. There is a compartment underneath the bottles and jars which is set up as a jewellery box and there is another drawer at the bottom probably for stationery. It would have been a very expensive item when it was made as it really is top quality. The coromandel box itself is in very good condition with no losses. This could be a very worthwhile project.
