Description

A stunning and beautifully made Edwardian satinwood wardrobe. Having magnificent starburst parquetry to its three doors. Central door with a full radiating sun, flanked by rising suns to the two outer. Four reeded and detailed columns frame the doors. These in turn are topped with attractive capitals with acanthus leaf decoration and terminate with fluted and tapered feet. Upper door sections are adorned with garlands and ribbon. To the left you have a double wardrobe with rail and hooks to its upper section. The base is fitted with a shoe rail. Bevelled dressing mirror fitted to outer door. The right hand side is fitted, with a second bevelled mirror, three linen slides, a lower shelf with two drawers below. The whole wardrobe has wonderful ironmongery with delightful door escutcheons, campaign style drawer handles, solid brass door stays and quality door bolts. A really sublime piece of furniture. Beautifully and finely made by a skilled cabinet maker. A good looking and functional piece of antique furniture that would grace any bedroom or dressing room. Would suit a modern or period interior. Provenance: Formerly the property of a Lady.
