An extremely rare example of 18th Century silver desk ware. This is a superb silver pounce pot. The body is of good gauge silver and baluster shape. The pull off lid has a rope twist border and star piercing. The lovely items were used for sprinkling chalk or sand over ink to prevent smudging after a letter or document had been written. They are always highly sought after, but a rare example by this unusual female silversmith, is a particular find. Dimensions below.
