Description

Thomas Sidney Cooper British, (1803-1902) Canterbury Meadows Oil on canvas, signed & dated 'T. Sidney Cooper RA/1894 Image size: 14.75 inches x 24.75 inches Size including frame: 21.5 inches x 31.5 inches Thomas Sidney Cooper was born in St Peter's Street Canterbury on 26 September 1803 to William and Sarah Cooper. He was christened Thomas Cooper and at some point adopted Sydney or Sidney as his middle name. At the age of 12 he started working as a coach painter and later a scene painter, continuing to draw and paint in his spare time. When he was 21 he was helped by his uncle to move to London and study at the Royal Academy. However, he didn't complete the course and returned to Canterbury. Shortly afterwards in 1824, he travelled to Brussels where he met Eugène Joseph Verboeckhoven who had a great influence on his work. He also met and married Charlotte Pearson the daughter of a mathematician. After the revolution broke out they returned to London in 1831 where Cooper started selling paintings of the cattle that he sketched at Smithfield Market. The couple lived at Portland Terrace, St John's Wood and together had four children. His son Thomas George Cooper (1836-19...
