Gillow's of Lancaster was a household name in Victorian Britain, and the firm exported furniture throughout the Empire. Key to the company's success was the dynamic father and son team at its core. The London branch was opened in 1775. Among Gillow's most successful pieces during this period were those made in the Neoclassical style from original drawings by Robert Adam. In the period 1813-1820 the Gillow family gradually withdrew from perso...
