Description

Pair of Mary Gregory cranberry glass vases This pair of Pair of Mary Gregory cranberry glass vases were made circa 1900. This genre of work with the delightful white enamel on glass is known as Mary Gregory. It was thought that Mary Gregory who worked at Boston & Sandwich Glass Company first made this but after extensive research this has now been debunked. See Mary Gregory Glassware by R&D Truitt. The best theory is now that it was made in Bohemia and became a massive industry in that area employing nearly 90,000 in this industry. It was high fashion from 1885 into the 1920's. There were various qualities, and most were quickly decorated and poorly finished, these are best to avoid. I always look to purchase and sell the pieces that were beautifully decorated and are especially charming. This pair that I am pleased to offer you I would attribute to Muhlhaus of Haida (Novy Bor, now Czech Republic) Each vase with the wavy fluted top a good-sized body and standing a clear glass foot. These were made in 2 pieces with the cranberry body that slipped into the clear glass base. 28cms high 11ins 18cms diameter 7ins All Measurements are approximate, whilst we take care in measurin...
