Description

An extremely good quality and elegant French Art Deco walnut guéridon extending dining table with a stunning radiating sunburst top designed and signed by Jules Leleu.(1883-1961) France, Paris c.1930. Finely constructed with choice cuts of straight grained European walnut, this large circular table known as guéridon is also an extendable dining table which has four drop down legs and can receive two extra leaves (leaves not present). The circular top veneered in a sunburst (lunette) pattern, with four rectangular supports each edged in bronze, all poised on a central cross-shaped support with four bronze tipped feet. Signed on ivory plaque by Jules Leleu himself. Design after model No 2527 circa 1936. In excellent condition having very good choice of veneers which have retained a wonderful colour. The centre leaves are not present so if desired would have to be reproduced, originally the leaves were extremely plain and unfinished so often discarded and not desirable. About Jules Leleu This piece has particularly impressive provenance as it is signed by its designer, Jules Leleu who was of the one key authors of the Art Deco movement. His family firm of Maison Leleu had...
