Description

This 19th-century mahogany longcase clock is a superb example of traditional craftsmanship, featuring string and cross banding inlays that enhance its elegant design. The brass and silver dial adds a distinguished touch, complementing the clock's timeless aesthetic. At its heart, a nine-bell musical movement chimes every quarter hour, offering both chime and silent options to suit different settings. The movement has been meticulously overhauled, ensuring full working order and reliable performance. With its rich mahogany tones and refined detailing, this longcase clock stands as a remarkable blend of artistry and function, making it a distinguished addition to any space.
