Description

After nearly two hundred years of use, this lovely antique stool only needed a little sensitive restoration and re-upholstery to prepare it for next two hundred. The secret to its longevity, is the quality of the materials used in it's construction, and the skill of the Georgian cabinet maker, in the 1830's, who gave it life - they followed the fashion of the day, by hand turning the ring decoration you can see on the stool's legs. A practical and attractive addition to a period or contemporary interior .
