Description

A charming 19th century bronze group of man, women and child after Clodion. Romantically standing together mostly naked but with a shawl draped around the male and the female entwined to his body while he has his arm around her. The woman is holding the hand of a child, and carrying grapes in a tambourine on her head. The child also carrying grapes over his back. The man is carrying a wine ewer. Beautifully modelled. Signed Clodion to the base. Claude Michel, known as Clodion was a French sculptor in the Rocco style noted for his lively charms of his figures. Died 1814 in Paris.
