Description

A handsome, good quality antique regency mahogany pembroke dining table dating from circa 1820 in the manner of Gillows. Featuring a solid mahogany top with reeded edges over a single frieze drawer with brass knobs at one end and repeated as a dummy drawer front at the other end. Raised on fine tapering Gillows style turned and reeded legs on brass castors. The leaves open out on two fold out oak supports to make a dining table suitable for two people. Construction/Wood: Mahogany Condition Report: Good condition – some wear and marks to the top and base commensurate with age. One of the brass casters is slightly different to the others.
