Description

A really charming and characterful Victorian Aesthetic movement oak pot cupboard c1870. The oak grain has been cleverly used to create a decorative effect in the door panel, top and upstand. The top has a chamfered edge decorated with ebonised triangles. Further down are a set of horizontal strips of inlaid mahogany and boxwood. The brass handle is typical of the Aesthetic era and turns to lock/unlock the door. All in all a decorative but useful, and interesting, piece. Height including upstand is 83cm.
