Description

Early 19th.c. French walnut and marble top secrétaire abattant or writing bureau c.1830. Open the fall to reveal a large desk (height 30") with a tooled leather writing surface. Fitted interior in elm with an open bookshelf, one long and five small stationery drawers plus two small secret compartments opening with sprung catches. White marble top and a long frieze drawer above the bureau and three good sized drawers below. Beautifully figured honey coloured walnut veneers laid in a symmetrical pattern across the fall and drawer fronts, with large brass escutcheons. Solid walnut sides and raised on the original turned feet. Damage to one of the little knobs on the interior drawers, otherwise excellent colour and condition. Restored cleaned and polished in our workshops, key supplied. Dimensions: width 39", depth 19", height 58".
