Description

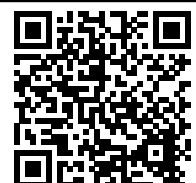

A fantastic survivor! A solid silver bleeding bowl dating from the reign of Queen Anne. The hallmarks on the side are remarkably clear, and they are for London 1702 with the maker's mark of John Cory. This is Britannia Standard silver, recognisable by the stamp of Britannia with her shield, rather than the lion passant of sterling silver. Britannia Standard silver has a higher purity (95.8%, as opposed to the 92.5% for sterling silver) and was introduced in 1696, just six years before the creation of this bleeding bowl. It is in an amazing condition given its age. The cast handle carries partial hallmarks and is firmly attached to the body. The handle has initials (H*T). Dimensions: Silver Weight: 99g Length: 16cm Width: 10cm Height: 3.5cm. Complimentary gift wrapping is available on request. Post and packaging are free within the UK. Overseas buyers please e-mail for postage costs and please note: Import duties, taxes, and charges are not included in the item price or shipping cost. These charges are the buyer's responsibility. Please check with your country's customs office to determine what these additional costs will be prior to bidding or buying.
