Circa 1810 A George III Period Oak Welsh Dresser and Rack, the moulded cornice above a frieze with original large iron cup hooks above three shelves with grooves for plates, all with further iron cup hooks, the base with three drawers and a central arch raised on ring turned supports with carved fan spandrels, the potboard raised on square stiles. This is one of the prettiest dressers we have had in many years and is a delight with all the original iron hooks still in situ. The design of this kitchen dresser is typical of examples which come from the Valleys region of South Wales, England during the Regency Period. Provenance: The late Nicholas Parsons, CBE.
