Description

A fine pair of sterling silver cauldron salts, these dating from the reign of George II. They are clearly hallmarked on the base for London 1738, with the maker's mark of Edward Wood. Edward Wood was a specialist salt maker and master to David Hennell, who in turn was the most prolific salt maker in the 18th Century. Some of Edward Wood's salts are displayed at the Victoria & Albert Museum in London. He died in 1752. These cauldron-shaped salts have good gilding. They stand on 3 hoof feet - there is a small amount of damage to the base of one foot, which is shown in the photographs. This does not stop the salt standing squarely on the surface. Dimensions: Total silver weight: 128g Height: 3.5cm Diameter: 6cm. Complimentary gift wrapping is available on request. Post and packaging are free within the UK. Overseas buyers please e-mail for postage costs and please note: Import duties, taxes, and charges are not included in the item price or shipping cost. These charges are the buyer's responsibility. Please check with your country's customs office to determine what these additional costs will be prior to bidding or buying.
