Description

Superb and totally authentic Art Deco door bell / chime. It's all in the detail and so anyone who is aspiring for the rare pieces to their Art Deco décor this has to surely then be a must. Made by the English manufacturer Morphy Richards who are still operating today this door bell comes to you in very good cosmetic condition. One of the most attractive variants of vintage door bell chimes, these date from the late 1940s. Morphy- Richards Ltd, St Mary Cray in Kent, England. Model: B.220. Substantially made in metal with a period grey 'crackle finish', the musical notation is made of polished brass, with brass ends to the tubes. Gives a traditional 'bing-bong' sound. Will run off a 9 volt battery, but ideally a 12 volt supply from a mains bell transformer. Measures: 7" wide at the case, and 11 3/4" overall depth. Condition is almost mint, obviously never been installed, no faults blemishes to note. FREE UK DELIVERY
