Description

I have been fortunate enough to get hold of another large collection of early 20th century Turkish olive pots. There is a huge range of sizes, designs and colours. All are genuine and have an amazing look. They are ideal for interior use but can be used outside as well. They are however porous meaning there is the risk of frost damage in winter. But if stored inside or wrapped through winter they will be perfectly fine and will last a good number of years yet. These look great left as it or filled. I often use these inside full of gnarly twigs and they look superb. This is a tall thin example that has great looking simple details. It would work well both inside or out and especially in a tight space. Height 86cm Diameter 45cm Price includes UK mainland delivery
