Description

This is an antique side table. An English, mahogany and walnut lamp or occasional table, dating to the Regency period, circa 1820. Delightfully finished, attractive Regency craftsmanship. Displaying a desirable aged patina and in good order. Select mahogany and walnut showing fine grain interest and rich russet hues. Ebonised mahogany draws the eye with deep black lustre. The oval top a treat with satinwood inlaid border framing a superbly figured centrepiece. Ebonised apron decorated with a band of golden stringing, intersected by each of the four leg supports. Hidden drawer to front, opening smoothly with blind pull to the underside. Decorative stringing continuing upon the quartet of slender legs. Lower shelf to centre, united by four serpentine stretcher supports. The gently splayed legs at canted angles with square section toes. This is a striking antique side table, with its hidden drawer adding further delight to the beautifully figured piece. A desirable example of Regency period furniture, this table is well suited to occasional use or central room placement. Solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home. Dimensions: Max Width: 60.5cm...
