Description

Four good, early 19th century ash and elm chairs. These chairs are all different but similar enough to look well together. There is a huge difference between these lovely handmade chairs that were made in the early 19th century by travelling craftsmen and 20th century mass-produced ones. The elm saddle seats are well shaped and the spindles, legs and bentwood ash backs are finely made. The height of the seats is 17 -17.5cm. The heights of the backs vary between 89 and 91cm. We have more if required.
