Description

A 19th Century cast iron bench it's the Coalbrookdale gothic pattern , although there are no apparent foundry marks. Lots of age and patina having had several coats of paint over the years and the wooden seat supports have been replaced in the past. There is some small loses (please see images) but with a pattern of this complexity very hard to discern and they don't really detract from its overall appearance. Good small size, very heavy, and nicely aged.
