Description

A good quality rosewood Writing Slope by the famous maker William Eyre of 19 Cockspur Street, London. The well figured rosewood case is enhanced with good quality and ornate gilt-brass inlays, recessed carry-handles, an ornate (blank) cartouche and sturdy edging. The interior writing slope of embossed black leather is in good original condition. The first interior section locks with a key, when opened it reveals the makers label and a storage tray, which can be lifted out to reveal a further storage space under and a spring-loaded panel, which when 'triggered', reveals three 'secret-drawers'. The front half of the writing slope opens by means of brass clips, to reveal a further storage area with ribbon note store. Date: c1850-60
