Description

This is an antique music cabinet. An English, rosewood display case with glazed door, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1900. Beautifully present your music collection with this Victorian cabinet. Displaying a desirable aged patina and in good order. Select Rosewood offers superb grain interest and russet hues. Original glazed door offers a clear, bright appearance. Top graced with a low gallery rail in brass with braided detail. Inlaid marquetry with stringing border and superb shell motif to the centre. Decorated with further boxwood stringing to the door and fascia. Door dressed with a shaped escutcheon over an inset lock — key absent. Interior arranged as a suite of three shelves over three tall compartments. Leather dressed edges help catalogue your music into Songs, Operas and Overtures respectively. Standing upon shaped bracket feet to each corner with plinth apron to rear. This is an attractive antique music cabinet, with exquisite inlay and dashing Rosewood stocks. Arrange your treasured music collection with panache. Solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
