Description

Two walnut bedside cabinets with serpentine facings all around the top. Finish is lovely as is the detailing, both around the drawer facing and on the door front. They are so similar, one is half a cm taller than the other, but you would have to take time to notice any difference especially on either side of a bed. We must assume they came from the same cabinet maker but possibly one first and the other later, but who knows for sure. The inside is marble and in place. The legs have a cabriole shape with neat detailing at the top of each leg. The sides have a quartered veneer panels which add extra appeal. All in all a very nice and tidy couple of cabinets that are not expensive in this condition.
