Description

ORIGINALLY BELONGED TO THE DECEASED ESTATE OF EDWARD WARNER LEICESTERSHIRES MASTER OF THE FAMOUS 'QUORN HUNT'. This is a unique chance to acquire an Early Flemish Genre themed mid 17th.century oil on canvas in the baroque style, depicting peasants smoking and drinking in a tavern or ale house. The brief history known is that the painting was sold back in 1919 by Warner Shepherd and Wade Auctioneers,who held a countryhouse sale on site some years after the death of Edward Warner huntmaster back in 1911. All the house contents were sold off and I have the original catalogue of sale dated Tuesday 2nd. 3rd. and 4th.December 1919,where the painting has been listed. The frame is of the correct period being approx.1630-1670,and is in good solid condition. The painting itself has been wax relined and was probably cleaned some years ago. There are no signs of any previous repairs and the surface colours look sharp,although the overall appearance is a little dark. There is no obvious signature or date visable. The execution of the painting is extremely similar to works by artist David Teniers TheYounger, who was born in 1610 & died in 1690,but cannot be attributed to him...
