Description

Superb mid 18th century George 3rd Chippendale mahogany bookcase with architectural pediment. This wonderful piece of furniture displays all the best features of mid 18th century design. The base section stands on original shaped bracket feet with two doors below two drawers. The drawers have cock beaded edges, are fully oak lined and have their original locks and swan neck brass handle. The pair of cupboard doors have an astragal moulding with carved round patera to the corners. There are two original sliding trays inside. The top section has the typical mid 18th century astragal glazed doors which amazingly have all their original wavy glass. Above the doors we have a typical 18th century dentil cornice with superb matching architectural dentil type pediment. The bookcase section is divided down the middle vertically and has fully adjustable shelves to both sides which are all original. The inside has been very well lined with high quality purple velvet of some age. The bookcase is low waisted which makes it look very elegant. There are one or two very minor old repairs but basically this bookcase is, as it was made. It is a pleasing colour with good patination...
