Description

Charles Leslie (1839-1886) an oil on canvas in ornate gilt frame, Highland hunting scene by moonlight, signed Chas Leslie to the reverse. Height 25 cm and Width 30 cm Charles Leslie was a British landscape painter. He is recorded as having an address in Wimbledon, London. One of the better-known painters of the Scottish and Welsh moorland scenes, Leslie was one of the first painters of this subject in the Victorian tradition. He gave the landscape a much more commercial appeal with the focus being on balance, content and light. Leslie would cast warm or open skies over his landscapes with still waters. Leslie exhibited at the Royal Academy from 1856 to 1862 as well as at the British Institute, Suffolk Street and elsewhere.
