Description

This namakdan (salt-bag) was woven in soumak technique by Shahsevan nomads in the Moghan region of Azerbaijan circa 1880-1900. The diagonal bands containing a scroll symbol, was quite popular among the Moghan Shahsevan during the 18th and 19th centuries. The bag is in excellent, complete condition with its original plain-weave back, in typical narrow bands of different colours, bar a tiny hole in the upper neck area, and secured by the nomads themselves at some point in the distant past. This is a highly collectible salt-bag. Size: 44cm x 38cm (1' 5" x 1' 3").
