Description

We are delighted to offer this magnificent large solid sterling silver basket made by Joseph & John Angell in London, 1835. This impressive basket features an array of highly desirable characteristics ranging from the use of a very sturdy gauge of silver for its formation to the fine and intricate chased floral embellishments. The bowl section is supported by a large and sturdy pedestal foot that has been elegantly shaped. A particularly noteworthy feature of this basket is in the intricacy of the craftsmanship in presenting an asymmetric and elegant Rococo (Rocaille) design with curved edges, wrythen sides and a highly ornate floral/foliate chased design. The handle of the basket is equally stylish with further Rococo decorations and a central cartouche with a griffin's head crest. The handle is slightly loose but it will stand up if carefully positioned. The centre of the basket is left plain with a spectacular hand-engraved coat of arms for Kipping impaling another and a presentation message below which reads as follows: "Presented by Sir John Hanmer, Bart, to Thomas Trevor Mather Esqr March 1st 1836". Due to the large size of the basket, in...
