Description

For sale a superb Art Deco period Desk Aneroid Barometer & Thermometer set by Joseph Lucas Limited. A really well designed early Twentieth set comprised of moulded clear plastic circular surrounds with integral feet, the aneroid barometer and thermometer movements being fitted inside the hollow moulds with red and silver dial designs. The barometer has a scale reading 28 to 31 inches of barometric pressure with a red outer ring containing weather indications presented in striking silver against the background. The red indicator hand is complemented with a steel set pointer operated by a flat silver dial to the front of the instrument. The reverse of the barometer is embossed with the words, "designed and built by Joseph Lucas Ltd". The thermometer is similarly designed but with a red scale and silver surround measuring 0 to 120 degrees of Fahrenheit indicated by a red pointer. The base of the scale being engraved with, "degrees Fahrenheit". The reverse is also embossed with, "designed and built by Joseph Lucas Limited" but also states, "Movement by the British Rototherm Co Ltd, London England". A very unusual set by an uncommon British maker, Joseph Lucas. Despite th...
