Description

This is a very good quality French clock, the bronze lady gesturing while holding an ormolu harp and resting a foot on an ormolu corinthian column top. The rouge marble and the ormolu base are sitting on 4 very fine cast feet. The silk suspended pendulum keeps the clock in good time, the works have been recently cleaned and are working well. The clock chimes on a single bell. The face bezel is turned and removed to wind the clock, the face of the clock is tool engraved. Please look at all the pictures and you will see how good the quality is and how fine the ormolu castings are. This clock is in very good condition and a good colour and patina. I can arrange the delivery worldwide, please take into account this clock is very heavy. I date the clock 1860/80 It stands 25 inches tall, 18 inches wide, 7 inches deep.
