Description

This particularly fine desk lamp (Circa 1920) is made from copper with a fine layer of decorative brass plating applied to its surface. As you can see from the images the specialist restorer has cleverly managed to polish and laquer it without damaging the plating. Its original switch is still in situ on the lamp's base and is fully working. However, because this is an original desk lamp some indication of wear and tear is to be expected - this period lamp has a 'very' slight bruise to the shade and two even smaller marks, none of which spoil its overall appeal. Now restored and tested this stylish lamp is ready to enhance your desk.
