Description

Edward John Niemann, 1813 - 1876 The Trossachs, Stirlingshire, Scotland with figures in the foreground signed and dated "E J Neimann 1865" oil on canvas 76.20 x 127 cm. (30 x 50 in.) The Trossachs and Breadalbane mark the spot where the Highlands and Lowlands meet. Much of this picturesque area lies within the boundaries of Loch Lomond and The Trossachs National Park. The Trossachs hills mark the dividing 'Highland Line' and, though its peaks may be humbler than those of its namesake, the Trossachs green uplands still dwarf the Lowland plain to the south. The gateways to this startling landscape, rich in mythology and folklore, are the villages of Callander and Aberfoyle. Callander has an abundance of craft and woollen shops and the centre of the town cradles the memories and exploits of legendary Highland Rogue Rob Roy MacGregor, local hero and bandit. To the north of the town lies the less excitable, more tranquil hamlet of Balquhider, where the churchyard containing Rob Roy's grave can be found, etched with the stirring epitaph "MacGregor Despite Them". Above Aberfoyle the Queen Elizabeth Forest Park is a haven for walkers and trekkers, and the splendour of nearby...
