Description

Technical Description A very rare example of a 19th century Nailsea glass flask decorated with pulled up red white and blue trailing, the blue moving into darker shades of amethyst as it moves down the flask. A rough pontil completes the piece with its original cork stopper. These flasks are popular and we often sell fine examples...however, the vibrant colour change and combination on this particular flask is very rare and we would say that this is probably the best example we have ever had. Date & Origin England, c1830. Period of Victoria. Condition Excellent, no chips cracks or restoration Dimensions Height: 20.2 Width: 10.3cm Depth: 3.6cm. Historical Relevance Hand-blown around the time Nathaniel Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter was published on the 16th of March 1850.
