Description

Superb quality Regency mahogany 'Wilkinson patent' extending dining table. Rectangular top, with rounded corners, over a decorative end frieze, with ebonized inlaid scrolls and central panel with foliate motif. Raised on eight ring turned and ebonized legs capped with brass castors. The table features the iconic 'Wilkinson patent' scissor mechanism which was designed by the Wilkinson cousins in the late 18th century. This ingenious, space saving design, takes the table from side-table size, right the way up to a 10 seater when fully extended. The four removable leaves (three large and one small) offer plenty of flexibility. Circa. 1820 *Length with no leaves in: 20" *Length with no leaves, top folded open: 40" *Length with one small leaf in: 51" *Length with one large leaf in: 59.5" *Length with two large leaves in: 78.5" *Length with all leaves in (three large and one small): 109"
