Description

This is a very good example of a King George III, brass dial, faux tortoiseshell background, gilt lacquered longcase clock in extremely good condition. The eight day duration, five pillar movement with Anchor Recoil escapement and rack striking the hours on a tuned bell. Having the original brass cased London weights, pendulum and crank key. Behind an 11 1/2" break-arch brass dial with 'white' silvered chapter ring, recessed subsidiary seconds dial, maker's arch plaque signed: "Richard Templer (of) LONDON" and also calendar ring. The main chapter having Roman numerals, minute ring and large outer Arabic fives. The chapter centre area being matted and the lower portion having a chamfered square calendar aperture. The corners and arch having open floral Rococo style spandrels. Also having pierced and blued steel hands. Contained in a fabulous and original faux Tortoiseshell and gilt lacquered oak case, having a pagoda top with front gilt sound fret and two turned giltwood ball finials also, hood door three-quarter and rear quarter pillars with gilt capitals and a cavetto throat moulding above the full length, well moulded, break-arch trunk door. The base also having a la...
