Description

This superb late regency English gentleman's library armchair is beautifully upholstered in patinated and buttoned tan leather with a brass nailed boarder. It is rich in colour, in excellent condition and very comfortable. The high back is tub-shaped with scrolled arms which lead on to a liar shaped carved mahogany frame which stands on turned carved front legs with original brass cup castors, the back ones are simpler out swept, and square in the form again with original brass castors. Circa 1830
