Description

This chandelier is the earliest example I've seen of this type. It appears as though it would have been powered by gas originally, now converted to electric. It has a moulded brass ring to the top decorated with spikes, going into swags with two different sizes of prism, which connects to the central moulded brass ring decorated with shields. There is a bag of swags hanging from this finished with a glass bowl. This is decorated with spikes and a glass ball. st 3153
