Description

Pair of Victorian mahogany easy armchairs This Pair of Victorian mahogany easy armchairs were made circa 1875. These high-quality frames with oval carvings and well carved swept arms. The turned mahogany front legs and the highly unusual stepped back legs. The stepped back legs must have been a quirk of the cabinet maker, I can't recall seeing other lie over the years. It is always lovely having a pair and imagine sitting back and relaxing in these comfortable chairs. They are in a tartan material that has been done in the not too distant past and so ready for your home.
