Description

A set of four mid 19th century mahogany dining chairs in the Louis XV style, the hourglass shaped upholstered back with reeded edge over a generous deep seat with reeded rails on fluted cabriole supports. Upholstered in a blue patterned brocade with a blue braid to the edges. English, in the french style, circa 1860. Condition: Overall very good, the chairs are all solid and robust and have a deep seat making them comfortable to sit on. The upholstery is in good condition but the material, while useable, is showing its age and has some minor stains. The chairs are elegant and have a nice patina.
