Description

This very finely detailed and stunning quality pair of German pottery vases were made at the Mettlach factory circa 1890. They were renowned for making this type of fine ware. This perfect pair are luxuriously decorated in rich colours and gilt. Elegantly shaped with a flared foot supporting a bulbous elliptical body with a tall slender neck decorated with moulded bands terminating in a slightly flared neck. They have a central continuous panel of raised and incised foliate scrolls and flower heads over a stippled ground with multiple bands of delicate decorative borders above and below. The neck is similarly decorated with smaller foliate scrolls over the same stippled ground and again with matching borders above and below. These fine examples are in excellent original condition with no restoration. They are very well marked on the underside with factory marks, US patent, Pattern number and artists mark Circa 1890
