Description

This must rank amongst my favourite Baluch rugs. Made in the Ferdows region by Baluch tribes around 1870-1880, the indigo-blue field contains a water-garden surrounded by a simplistic yet powerful main border containing stylised fish swimming around water lilies - symbols of happiness. The weaver must have been at the peak of her profession to produce such an amazing rug. See a similar example in my third edition 'Tribal Rugs - Treasures of the Black Tent' page 118. Size: 1.60m x 0.92m (5' 3" x 3' 0")
