Description

This large and beautiful porcelain open woven basket is made in the 18th century style most probably at the French Samson Factory. It has a fake English Staffs mark on its base with a crown in gilt. Samson was well known for making copies of earlier items often with confusing marks. This interesting piece is of exceptional quality complexly handwoven in white porcelain decorated with gold and turquoise blue with a fine oval central panel hand painted with a rural landscape with three exotic birds standing amongst floral vegetation and trees. It is in perfect original condition with no wear to the rich gilding. Circa 1890
