Description

An exquisite early 20th century wooden table lamp with a beautifully applied original paint finish possibly intended to simulate the semi-precious blue stone lapis lazuli. This stunning example requires a simple rewire through the base and up to the bulb holder. It is comprised of a stepped and moulded plinth base and an architectural column surmounted by a capital. The height measurement given is to the top of the bulb holder. A really lovely piece of English vintage lighting that would grace any drawing room.
