Description

A very fine 8-day striking longcase clock with the option of a strike/silent made by this prominent maker of high esteem. The case features choice veneers of beautiful flame mahogany. The original painted dial is signed "James McCabe of Royal Exchange, London" and features Roman numerals and very fine blued steel hands. A charming and very well made clock from a very good period of clockmaking by a very good clockmaker. James McCabe, the founder of the firm, was born in Belfast. He came to London in the 1770's, settling at Royal Exchange in 1804. He became a Freeman of the Clockmakers Company in 1781 and a Warden in 1811, the year he died. He was succeeded by his son, also James, who is regarded as one of the finest English clock and watchmakers of the nineteenth century. He was apprenticed to Reid and Auld and gained admittance to the clockmakers Company in 1822. Robert Jeremy McCabe, James's nephew, continued the business until he retired in 1883. Serviced and guaranteed for 3 years. Height: 91" or 232cm (Including finial) CIRCA. 1820 Provenance: Private collection - U.K. Would you like to view this clock in your own home?
