Description

This is a stunning 19th century farmhouse dining table made of Linden wood. Linden wood is native to Provence in the south of France and I have never seen it used on such a large table as this. The timber has a fabulous pale colour to it with an attractive patina all over. The edge planks aswell have a very tactile smooth feel from years of use. The size of this table makes it ideal for 8-10 people and although stretchered at the ends it would be fine for someone to sit at and put their legs over. Structurally solid and a very attractive piece of country furniture. Height 77cm Length 266cm Depth 100cm Height of lower rail 63cm Price includes UK mainland delivery
