Description

This is an antique linen press. An English, mahogany bedroom tallboy cabinet with chest of drawers below, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1900. Beautifully presented cabinet of usefully narrow proportion Displays a desirable aged patina throughout Select stocks show fine grain interest to all sections Delightful rich russet hues beam beneath a wax polish finish Wide reverse tiered crown moulding stands prominently above the whole Arranged as a press cupboard over a suite of four graduated drawers Two field panel doors give access to the cupboard within, replete with a full-width shelf Dressed with a small brass oval lock escutcheon — in working order, key present Each full-width drawer dressed with a pair of decorated brass oval drop handles Locks present to each drawer front with discrete escutcheon - in working order With dovetail joints and cockbeading detail, each drawer box is pleasingly solid and robust Standing upon dashing shaped bracket feet to each corner This is a delightful antique linen press, a superb, slim profiled cabinet for smaller rooms where space is at a premium. Great colour and finish adds further appeal. Solid joints and construction...
