Description

A beautiful English three drawer pocket or field telescope made from Mahogany and polished brass, the latter having been professionally re-polished to gleam. There is a brass end cap and the bottom part of the brass pulls out to create a sun shade around the lens. It is here that the engraving can be found with a date of 1890, presented to George D. Petty & Good Conduct, Juniors. I have another that I purchased with this presented to George D. Pelly, clearly one of these was mistakenly engraved all those years ago. There is a tiny shutter over the eye piece for protection. A wonderful and handsome example in excellent condition, measuring 6 1/8" in length expanding to 17" in length.
