Description

This splendid ancient Greek gold and amethyst pendant dates from the Hellenistic or Classical Greek period. The amethyst has been cut to a pomegranate shape, then centrally drilled to enable it to contain a pin which is then secured by two scalloped shaped settings. There is a loop attached to the top to act as a pendant bail. The fittings have been decorated in gold wires and grains, forming a stunning and unquestionably exquisite artefact. This beautiful item has been created by a skilled craftsman long ago and has remained in a fantastic condition. Own an important piece of history, combined with a gorgeous item of jewellery. This item is supplied with a full independent report to include an XRF test. A part of our ancient jewellery collection.
